

Dressing you from head to toe

Because looking good is 1/2 the battle.

cruiser-friendly

FASHION

Ride T by Twin Six

Whether a weekend warrior or casual cruiser, you'll stand out from the pack with these great t-shirts from Twin Six. This particular shirt is a 2010 design and won't be available much longer, get it now if you want one. $22 • twinsix.com

Skymajor by Rudy Project

You probably figured Rudy Project sunglasses were too techy or roady for you to wear on a cruiser ride. Well, yes, until now. The company famous for its cycling glasses, now produces styles you can wear anywhere. The Skymajors have classic aviator styling, available in chrome, gold, and gun metal. $174.99 • rudyprojectusa.com

Flap Jack Courier by Osprey

An American classic, Osprey has been making some of the highest quality and innovative packs out there since 1974. The Flap Jack messenger bag is no exception, with ergonomic buckles and zippers and lots of thought-out pocket options. Consider it an investment in your traveling pleasure and style. Gender specific sizing and styling. $79 • ospreypacks.com

Tank Messenger by High Sierra

If you're looking for a practical messenger bag with a bit of flare and good value, this is the one for you. The adjustable flap has a hook and loop closure system, and the bag has numerous specialized pockets, keeping your belongings organized. The loop to hold an LED blinker is a nice touch, too. $70 • highsierrasport.com

Merric-Joined by Skechers

These cool, classic-styled men's sneakers are super comfy and have a real swell vintage look. In addition to looking cool, the puzzle-design tread rests on the pedal of your bicycle nicely. Available in a variety of colors. $55 • skechers.com

Revv Air by Skechers

The full-length cushion midsole makes this sporty sneaker feel like you are walking on air. And the fact that they are so comfortable means you will grab these shoes before you hop on your cruiser. $55 • skechers.com